

"I WANT WORK" SIGN FAILS TO CATCH PARK ROW

Legend on Man's Chest Is Gazed At and Passed as Curiosity.

POWELL ISN'T JOKING

Stranded Race Stable Hostler
Means It, but Can't Make Folk Believe.

It remains to be seen whether Park Row will prove a better job hunting ground than Herald Square, for Harry Powell is standing in front of the Tribune Building with a sign across his chest reading:

"I WANT WORK."

Up to a late hour to-day Powell hadn't landed a job. A lot of folk passed him by, stopped and gazed at him, or circled around him, but none came forward with anything looking like a job.

Powell says he stood all day yesterday in Herald Square, but that nothing bearing the least resemblance to a job came his way. He announces that he will stand on Park Row until late into the night, in the hope of landing something. He says he isn't particular what sort of work he gets, and is even willing to go to Brooklyn.

The would-be worker says he is stopping at Eddy, York's hotel, better known as the City Lodging House, at First Avenue and Twenty-third street. He can't stay there long, for folk who stop beyond the three-day limit at the Municipal hospital are sent to the island as vagrants.

Powell told an Evening World reporter that he had recently arrived from Savannah, whither he went with the race horses belonging to Throckmold. He says that he had worked in Throckmold's stable at Sheepshead Bay and went South with the horses for the winter. He explains his presence here as due to a lack of appreciation of the beauties of Savannah, and also the fact that not many hostlers are needed around a racing stable that isn't racing.

"I really want work," said Powell, "and I have had experience as a hostler of a flat and as a hostler in a stable. There are lots of things I can do, and I am willing to do anything, just so I can get a job. In Herald Square yesterday some persons offered me money. I don't want money that way. I want to work for it."

Powell says he is not the same man who stood in Herald Square during the holidays last year with a "work wanted" sign.

TURKEY WAS ANTIQUE, MADE NEIGHBORS HOWL.

Powl, Produced in Court, Caused
Hasty Award of Justice, a la
Solomon.

William Woback, a butcher, of No. 233 Eton street, Bronx, in the Morrisania Police Court, to-day, was charged with selling to Mrs. Fred Dietrich, of No. 67 East One Hundred and Fifty-third street, an ancient fowl, commonly known as a turkey, which, it was claimed, was the storm center of a series of rumors and odors yesterday, which not only drove Mr. Dietrich out of his flat, but brought in neighbors in a group with mean comments upon the antique bird.

Woback told Magistrate Walsh that Mrs. Woback had placed the Colonial turkey in hot water. Mrs. Woback said she had not. Magistrate Walsh featured Woback and sympathized with the husband.

He ordered Woback to produce another turkey, just as large, but of more recent birth. Dietrich had the deceased turkey in a glass case in his court, and caused a hasty decision on the part of justice.

Hazelton PIANOS.

The limit of tone and beauty the Hazelton Pianos possess are almost incapable of definition. They are as much admired by lovers of beautiful furniture as they are by the musician for the wonderful HAZELTON TONE.

French Hand-Made Underwear

One of the features of this superb showing of White Sale undermuslins for women is a collection of French hand-made underwear at prices we believe never seen before on goods of this class.

All women know this beautifully-simple, richly-elaborate, delicate and desirable product. In its finer pieces it shows the best needlework performed in the world for general commercial purposes. Even in its simplest forms it has a daintiness and finish famous throughout the world.

We make an extensive showing of these beautiful pieces, priced as follows:

Hand-Embroidered Chemises, . . . . . 98c to $7.50
Hand-Embroidered Gowns, . . . . . $2.25 to $10.00
Hand-Embroidered Drawers, . . . . . 98c to $6.50

4,000 Dozen Collars for Men and Boys
at 5c each

They are "seconds" of the regular 2-for-25c. grades of the best-known make that comes out of Troy. Every one is stamped with a familiar and trustworthy brand. All sizes and all the good styles of the present season are included.

The imperfections which put them in the "second" class amount to very little—in most cases to nothing at all that affects their looks or service. By far the greater part are imperfections in laundering.

There are literally hundreds of styles. Sizes begin at 12 and run up to 20.
